"THE LIFE OF SAMUEL GRANGE

By Violet Grange Grace 1955"

In 1883, May first, Father moved his family to Huntington, Emery County, Utah as pioneers to help build "Castle Valley" as it was called. He was persuaded to move from Springville, where, as some thought, all the available farm lands were taken up, and to move to Castle Valley where he could make entries to farms and homes for his boys who would soon be old enough to start homes and families of their own. This area was the last one authorized for settlement by President Brigham Young in June Conference in 1877 - two months before he passed away August 29th.

The townsite was extremely uninviting and bare with not a tree or blade of grass to be seen - nothing except prickley-pear beds and grease-wood - a positive proof of poor, shallow, clay soil with little or no plant food in it. The surrounding farm land was much the same except on the creek bottoms. But the Saints knew nothing about soils and didn't realize that they were being duped by mother nature. They began homes in good faith and expected to thrive and prosper. Father made entry to farm land three miles down the river East on what became known as Grange Flat and surveyed a canal to take the water out of the creek about two miles above the farm. The Cedar Creek wash emptied into the Huntington Creek and the canal had to cross this wash. Each time there was a heavy summer rain crossed this drainage district flood waters always came down and washed out the bank of the ditch which was a levee across the wash. This cut off the water from the farm land and the crops were without water until the levee was rebuilt and the canal repaired. At times the harvest was endangered, for this condition occurred time and again during some seasons. Finally they joined the North Ditch Company which eliminated this hazard and expense and worry.

Father and the boys helped to finish the town canal and bring the water to the townsite and he was the first to take the water out of the canal and lead it to the city lot where he had planted a garden. Then he and the boys went to the canyon to get logs for a new house. Their experience in the tie camp now served them well and they brought long, straight logs so well hewn that they were a wonder to some and were almost as smooth as sawed logs. By November the new home was ready to move into. It had two rooms, each 18 by 16 feet with a roof of real shingles - the first in town.

On November 3rd our first Castle Valley baby, Arthur, was born in the little log room and Sally Wimmer was the doctor. As soon as Mother was strong again we moved into our new home. Later Father built a good-looking board fence on the two outer sides of the one and a quarter acre lot and a picket gate, planted lawn, fruit trees and shade trees which were among the first on the townsite proper. Others had trees east of the townsite on their farms.

Father was given the first U. S. contract to carry the mail from Price, to Emery, a distance of sixty miles three times each week for $1,700.00 per year. The two boys, Sam and Ulesses, carried the mail pouches on horse back or in the old white stage coach. During the spring thaws the streams were swollen until they were impassable and mail pouches had to be taken across them on ropes, for there were no bridges; this was truly a time of great worry and anxiety, especially for Mother.

For a number of years Father was the only shoe maker in those parts and made boots and shoes for most every one. He bought sole leather and "upper leather" by the side from Z.C.M.I., fine calf skin for the ladies' shoes and heavier for men's shoes and boots, also light weight and the heavier sole leather by the whole "side." He took great pride in his work and aimed to always more than satisfy his customers.

He also went to Price and Castle Gate and did quite an extensive business. Years later Charley Taylor of Provo who was formerly manager of Price Trading Company store said to Arthur, "I have, even now, a pair of boots your father made for me in 1887. They are still good and whenever I get on a horse I wear those boots."

OVER

Father was a quiet, pleasant, jovial man and would sit hour after hour at his bench before the south window singing quietly his favorite songs as his feelings or thoughts caused him to select them from the list -

"Do they miss me at home, do they miss me?"

"Yes, my native land, I love thee."

"Oh, Babylon, oh, Babylon, we bid thee farewell."
and many others.

And while he was resting from any work we children would stand before him and ask him to sing his songs or tell us about leaving his home in England and when he landed in St. Louis, while we gazed into his face and wondered what his feelings were.

In 1886 Charles Pulsipher was chosen as the second bishop of the Huntington ward and soon after this a new church house was planned which was the first brick church in Emery Stake. Father took much interest and an active part in its erection. The little boy Arthur, then seven to nine years old, remembers helping to carry brick to the masons - in a child's way. It still stands, in 1955, after seventy years, a worthy monument and a testimony to the faith, devotion, and integrity of those worthy pioneers who built it. Father worked continuously on the church as long as his health would permit; but it was not completed when he passed away.

In September 1888, Father, Mother, Sam and Ulysses went to the Manti temple, dedicated that spring, to do ordinance work for his parents, two grandparents and their children who had passed away, and have these two boys and his other children sealed to himself and to each of his three wives respectively. I went with them to care for Frank who was then sixteen months old, and I eleven years. The trip was made in a covered wagon through Huntington Canyon, Father walking all the way, except across the streams. When walking any distance, especially in warm weather, he usually carried his hat in his hand.

Father had a wonderful sympathetic understanding for those in trouble or sorrow. After Miles E. Johnson lost his first wife, Alice, and was left with three small children, Father knew, from sad experience, how to pity, comfort and encourage him. He would awake in the small hours of the night with the impression that Milas needed him. He would get up, dress, and walk a mile or more and find Brother Johnson out pacing in the yard alone, almost beside himself with sorrow. Needless to say Father realized the feelings and emotions and knew how to comfort and console.

Father had great personal pride and never went up to the Post Office, even, without brushing his shoes and tidying himself up. Before people learned his name they called him "The man with clean shoes." One man asked him, "How can you afford polish to clean your shoes so often?" Father replied, "My shoe polish is not expensive. I got it off the back stove lid." Each Saturday night he always polished the shoes for all us children ready for Sunday School next morning.

Father valued his citizenship in the United States and considered his franchise one of his greatest blessings. The last time he left home was to go to the polls to vote in November before he passed away December 1893.

He served as a member of the local church board of education and also as a member of the District board of education, which position he held at the time of his demise.

To his third wife, Esther, were born fourteen children, ten of whom lived to maturity and were all, finally married in the temple. At his passing he had as many "Over There" to greet him as he left here.

His was a checkered and varied life, full of tests and trials which he passed in a creditable way. He was never more exacting with others than he was with himself. He lived part of his life among the roughest, but I never saw in him even a suggestion of anything rough or ungentlemanly and I never heard him swear or profane.

If each of us, his descendants, can and will live as honorably and upright as he, we will climb the highway of life and travel the road of eternal progression. We must do this to prove ourselves worthy to inherit our birthright to a home with them in the eternal world to come.

May God help us, each and all, to do this. Otherwise we will lose our birthright.

Submission of the Credential

We, the undersigned descendants of Samuel Grange, have carefully gone over the excerpt from the life sketch of Samuel Grange, written by his daughter Violet. We have modified the wording of one statement in it, and have transposed the last two sentences of it.

With these two changes, we feel that it and the family group photograph and the genealogy sheets accompanying it constitute a credential worthy of consideration for the purpose for which the assignment of a family credential was given.

To the end that it may serve its purpose, we respectfully submit it for such action on it as shall be in order.

Action on the Credential

I find nothing in the Constitution and By-Laws of the John Grange and Nanny Atkinson Genealogical Association which would prevent the material which constitutes the foregoing credential from being used as such by those submitting the credential.

Therefore, on condition that there is no legitimate reason why it can not be thus used, the credential is very acceptable in my judgement, and the Association from which it originally came is to be commended on the excellent record material it has furnished to its members.

"Bishop Cox:

Bishop Cox was nearing his forty-fifth year when he became bishop. From the statements of the witnesses it appears that he was truly a sturdy, quiet, self-effacing, pioneer bishop. There was something of granite in him. He had 'started from scratch' in leading and directing the people under his bishopric in taking dominion over a spot of Mother Earth and subduing it. He did not evade the rough surface that had to be smoothed.

Before his term expired, roads had threaded through canyon and country; waterways had carried limpid streams to thirsty heads; homes were beginning to lift their full cabins. Crops, gardens, and doubtless even some flowers and young trees were beginning to give a touch of green to the landscape and a sweetness of breath to the arid breeze. And the warmth of community life, with its little church and Sabbath services was tempering the harshness of the very elements, coaxing them to adapt their forces to the benefit of man."

We, the undersigned descendants of Samuel Grange, have carefully gone over the excerpt from the life sketch of Samuel Grange, written by his daughter Violet. We have modified the wording of one statement in it, and have transposed the last two sentences of it.

With these two changes, we feel that it and the family group photograph and the genealogy sheets accompanying it constitute a credential worthy of consideration for the purpose for which the assignment of a family credential was given.

To the end that it may serve its purpose, we respectfully submit it for such action on it as shall be in order.

Action on the Credential

I find nothing in the Constitution and By-Laws of the John Grange and Nanny Atkinson Genealogical Association which would prevent the material which constitutes the foregoing credential from being used as such by those submitting the credential.

Therefore, on condition that there is no legitimate reason why it can not be thus used, the credential is very acceptable in my judgement, and the Association from which it originally came is to be commended on the excellent record material it has furnished to its members.

Lilly Cook
