

METTA GUDKJARSEN NELSON

By Eunice M. Nelson

Metta Gudkjarsen Nelson was born 28 Nov. 1827 in Denmark. She was converted to the L.D.S. Church and baptized before leaving Denmark with an independent company of L.D.S. converts. This was the first large company to come from Scandinavia. John E. Forsgren served as the Captain. They left Copenhagen on December 20, 1852, sailing to Liverpool. Here the 279 Saints waited until the sailing vessel Forest Monarch was ready to sail on Jan. 16, 1853. It docked at New Orleans on March 16, 1853. The company then boarded a steamboat and sailed up the Mississippi River to St. Louis where they remained for about a month. From there they proceeded up the river two hundred miles to Keokuk, Iowa where they outfitted for crossing the plains. They arrived safely in Salt Lake City on September 30, 1853.

Brigham Young directed these Danish people to go to Sanpete. They stopped at Spring City, which was then called Little Denmark. The settlers were busy gathering in their abundant crops of potatoes and wild hay; they were also getting out logs for building more homes. Near Christmas a friendly Indian came and warned the settlers that a war party was on the way to massacre them. They hurriedly loaded their wagons with belongings and set out toward Manti. As they came to the turn in the road about one mile south, they looked back and saw the houses and haystacks in Spring City in flames.

The Manti people took them into the fort and assigned them a place to spend the winter. Elizabeth Crawford Munk's "History of Manti" lists Andrew and Metta as man and wife among these refugees.

I have not been able to find where they were married. Both Metta and Andrew came in the Forsgren Company from Denmark. It must have been a civil ceremony because it is not listed in the Church Offices in Salt Lake City. They were probably married in Spring City by an Elder's ceremony, which was considered a civil ceremony. The Church Archives report Andrew Nelson and Metta Gudkjarsen were sealed at the home of Isaac Morley in Santaquin on June 22, 1859. Also, on June 22, 1859 Metta Christine Jensen and Andrew Nelson were sealed, and later all were sealed at the Endowment House in Salt Lake City.

Andrew and Metta obtained a city lot when the fort at Manti was abandoned. They built a home, took up land for farming and pasture, and supported themselves in the regular pioneer manner. Their son Andrew Jr. was born April 2, 1857, a daughter Emma was born Feb. 10, 1861. August was born Aug. 14, 1863.

In May 1865 Andrew Nelson left Manti for a mission in Denmark. Metta's son Joseph was born Nov. 30, 1865, which was six months after Andrew left for his mission. Metta had the four children, the farm and livestock to care for with what help she could get from the neighbors.

When Andrew had been in Denmark on his mission a few months another group of converts was ready to emigrate to Utah. My father, Peter H.

Madsen, was among them. He was 18 years old. It is my impression that Andrew was worrying about Metta and asked my father to go to Metta when he reached Manti and help her care for the farm work. Not the least of this work was going into the mountains and hauling firewood to heat her home.

My father stayed at Metta's home until Andrew reached home in the fall of 1867 - and a few weeks longer.

It seemed that Metta was generous in sharing her home with young people. Anna Laurentsen also stayed with her when she arrived from Denmark. She later married Andrew Jr.

Another girl, Christine Anderson - later wife of James Crawford stayed with Metta - for years. When the Niels Hansen family moved to Ferron he left his daughter Hannah Hansen Ralphs with Metta for a time.

When her husband Andrew returned from his mission in 1867 he brought with him two orphan girls, Camilla and Sophia Moller, whose older married sister had died crossing the plains. They had intended making their home with this sister. Alone among strangers who spoke a different language, they were bewildered. They were happy when the trusted missionary Andrew Nelson took them to Manti. Metta took them into her home. Andrew married them in the spring of 1868 - they were his third and fourth wives. However, Christine had withdrawn from the family, leaving the three wives.

Metta's son Christian was born April 7, 1869. They lived congenially in Manti until 1889 when Andrew was disfellowshipped from the L.D.S. Church for neglecting his Church duties. Metta then withdrew from the family. She came to Ferron and lived with her son Christian in the home now owned by Clarise Beverage and husband Alex.

About 1892 when Emma and John Lemon were planning their home, Metta looked at the plans and remarked "This fine large house and not a room for me." They immediately added an East wing to the plans and finished the home. In her later life Metta occupied those lovely rooms and died there April 11, 1902. She is buried in the Ferron Cemetery.

NOTES ABOUT METTA NELSON

Metta was the daughter of Gudkjaer (Godfrey) Nielsen (born 1798) and Elise Jensen. She was disowned by her family when she joined the Mormon Church and was given one dollar (or its equivalent) and sent away. She suffered many hardships before she got to Utah. The ship on which she sailed was on the ocean eleven weeks and the emigrants were so weak that they had to be helped to shore when the ship landed.

She came on to Utah by ox-team in 1853, traveling with the Captain Forsgren Company. She was married to Andrew Nelson in 1853 at Spring City and was called by Heber C. Kimball with her husband to settle Spring Town, now Spring City. They were unable to do this because the Indian hostility forced them on to Manti. --- Lillian Nelson

As a young woman, Metta was tall. She had pretty black hair and dark brown eyes. She was even tempered and mild. She could fit in and didn't take sides. --- Kate Hall and Arthur Lemon

METTA GUDKJARSEN NELSON

By Eunice M. Nelson

Metta Gudkjarsen Nelson was born 28 Nov 1827 in Denmark. She was converted to the L.D.S. Church and baptized before leaving Denmark with an independent company of L.D.S. converts. This was the first large company to come from Scandinavia. John E. Forsgren served as the Captain. They left Copenhagen on December 20, 1852, sailing to Liverpool. Here the 279 Saints waited until the sailing vessel Forest Monarch was ready to sail on Jan. 16, 1853. It docked at New Orleans on March 16, 1853.

The company then boarded a steamboat and sailed up the Mississippi River to St. Louis where they remained for about a month. From there they proceeded up the river two hundred miles to Keokuk, Iowa where they outfitted for crossing the plains. They arrived safely in Salt Lake City on September 30, 1853.

Brigham Young directed these Danish people to go to Sanpete. They stopped at Spring City, which was then called Little Denmark. The settlers were busy gathering in their abundant crops of potatoes and wild hay; they were also getting out logs for building more homes. Near Christmas a friendly Indian came and warned the settlers that a war party was on the way to massacre them. They hurriedly loaded their wagons with belongings and set out toward Manti. As they came to the turn in the road about one mile south, they looked back and saw the houses and haystacks in Spring City in flames.

The Manti people took them into the fort and assigned them a place to spend the winter. Elizabeth Crawford Munk's "History of Manti" lists Andrew and Metta as man and wife among these refugees.

I have not been able to find where they were married. Both Metta and Andrew came in the Forsgren Company from Denmark. It must have been a civil ceremony because it is not listed in the Church Offices in Salt Lake City. They were probably married in Spring City by an Elder's ceremony, which was considered a civil ceremony. The Church Archives report Andrew Nelson and Metta Gudkjarsen were sealed at the home of Isaac Morley in Santaquin on June 22, 1859. Also, on June 22, 1859 Metta Christine Jensen and Andrew Nelson were sealed, and later all were sealed at the Endowment House in Salt Lake City.

Andrew and Metta obtained a city lot when the fort at Manti was abandoned. They built a home, took up land for farming and pasture, and supported themselves in the regular pioneer manner. Their son Andrew Jr. was born April 2, 1857, a daughter Emma was born Feb. 10, 1861. August was born Aug. 14, 1863.

In May 1865 Andrew Nelson left Manti for a mission in Denmark. Metta's son Joseph was born Nov. 30, 1865, which was six months after Andrew left for his mission. Metta had the four children, the farm and livestock to care for with what help she could get from the neighbors.

When Andrew had been in Denmark on his mission a few months another group of converts was ready to emigrate to Utah. My father, Peter H.

Madsen, was among them. He was 18 years old. It is my impression that Andrew was worrying about Metta and asked my father to go to Metta when he reached Manti and help her care for the farm work. Not the least of this work was going into the mountains and hauling firewood to heat her home.

My father stayed at Metta's home until Andrew reached home in the fall of 1867 - and a few weeks longer.

It seemed that Metta was generous in sharing her home with young people. Anna Laurentsen also stayed with her when she arrived from Denmark. She later married Andrew Jr.

Another girl, Christine Anderson - later wife of James Crawford stayed with Metta - for years. When the Niels Hansen family moved to Ferron he left his daughter Hannah Hansen Phelps with Metta for a time.

When her husband Andrew returned from his mission in 1867 he brought with him two orphan girls, Camilla and Sophia Moller, whose older married sister had died crossing the plains. They had intended making their home with this sister. Alone among strangers who spoke a different language, they were bewildered. They were happy when the trusted missionary Andrew Nelson took them to Manti. Metta took them into her home. Andrew married them in the spring of 1868 - they were his third and fourth wives. However, Christine had withdrawn from the family, leaving the three wives.

Metta's son Christian was born April 7, 1869. They lived congenially in Manti until 1889 when Andrew was disfellowshipped from the L.D.S. Church for neglecting his Church duties. Metta then withdrew from the family. She came to Ferron and lived with her son Christian in the home now owned by Clarise Beverage and husband Alex.

About 1892 when Emma and John Lemon were planning their home, Metta looked at the plans and remarked "This fine large house and not a room for me." They immediately added an East wing to the plans and finished the home. In her later life Metta occupied those lovely rooms and died there April 11, 1902. She is buried in the Ferron Cemetery.

NOTES ABOUT METTA NELSON

Metta was the daughter of Gaddjaer (Godfrey) Nielsen (born 1798) and Elise Jensen. She was disowned by her family when she joined the Mormon Church and was given one dollar (or its equivalent) and sent away. She suffered many hardships before she got to Utah. The ship on which she sailed was on the ocean eleven weeks and the emigrants were so weak that they had to be helped to shore when the ship landed.

She came on to Utah by ox-team in 1853, traveling with the Captain Forsgren Company. She was married to Andrew Nelson in 1853 at Spring City and was called by Heber C. Kimball with her husband to settle Spring Town, now Spring City. They were unable to do this because the Indian hostility forced them on to Manti. --- Lillian Nelson

As a young woman, Metta was tall. She had pretty black hair and dark brown eyes. She was even tempered and mild. She could fit in and didn't take sides. --- Kate Hall and Arthur Lemon

METTJA GUDKJARSEN NELSON

By Bunice M. Nelson
Metta Gudkjarsen Nelson was born 28 Nov 1827 in Denmark. She was converted to the L.D.S. Church and baptized before leaving Denmark with an independent company of L.D.S. converts. This was the first large company to come from Scandinavia. John B. Forsgren served as the Captain. They left Copenhagen on December 20, 1852, sailing to Liverpool. Here the 279 Saints waited until the sailing vessel Forest Monarch was ready to sail on Jan. 16, 1853. It docked at New Orleans on March 16, 1853. The company then boarded a steamboat and sailed up the Mississippi River to St. Louis where they remained for about a month. From there they proceeded up the river two hundred miles to Keokuk, Iowa where they outfitted for crossing the plains. They arrived safely in Salt Lake City on September 30, 1853.
Brigham Young directed these Danish people to go to Sanpete. They stopped at Spring City, which was then called Little Denmark. The settlers were busy gathering in their abundant crops of potatoes and wild hay; they were also getting out logs for building more homes. Near Christmas a friendly Indian came and warned the settlers that a war party was on the way to massacre them. They hurriedly loaded their wagons with belongings and set out toward Mantt. As they came to the turn in the road about one mile south, they looked back and saw the houses and haystacks in Spring City in flames.
The Mantt people took them into the fort and assigned them a place to spend the winter. Elizabeth Crawford Munk's "History of Mantt" lists Andrew and Metta as man and wife among these refugees.
I have not been able to find where they were married. Both Metta and Andrew came in the Forsgren Company from Denmark. It must have been a civil ceremony because it is not listed in the Church Offices in Salt Lake City. They were probably married in Spring City by an Elder's ceremony, which was considered a civil ceremony. The Church Archives report Andrew Nelson and Metta Gudkjarsen were sealed at the home of Isaac Morley in Santaquin on June 22, 1859. Also, on June 22, 1859 Metta Christine Jensen and Andrew Nelson were sealed, and later all were sealed at the Endowment House in Salt Lake City.
Andrew and Metta obtained a city lot when the fort at Mantt was abandoned. They built a home, took up land for farming and pasture, and supported themselves in the regular pioneer manner. Their son Andrew Jr. was born April 2, 1857, a daughter Emma was born Feb. 10, 1861. August was born Aug. 14, 1863.
In May 1865 Andrew Nelson left Mantt for a mission in Denmark. Metta's son Joseph was born Nov. 30, 1865, which was six months after Andrew left for his mission. Metta had the four children, the farm and livestock to care for with what help she could get from the neighbors. When Andrew had been in Denmark on his mission a few months another group of converts was ready to emigrate to Utah. My father, Peter H.

Madsen, was among them. He was 18 years old. It is my impression that Andrew was worrying about Metta and asked my father to go to Metta when he reached Mantt and help her care for the farm work. Not the least of this work was going into the mountains and hauling firewood to heat her home.
My father stayed at Metta's home until Andrew reached home in the fall of 1867 - and a few weeks longer.
It seemed that Metta was generous in sharing her home with young people. Anna Laurentsen also stayed with her when she arrived from Denmark. She later married Andrew Jr.
Another girl, Christine Anderson - later wife of James Crawford stayed with Metta - for years. When the Nils Hansen family moved to Ferron he left his daughter Hannah Hansen Ralps with Metta for a time. When her husband Andrew returned from his mission in 1867 he brought with him two orphan girls, Camilla and Sophia Moller, whose older married sister had died crossing the plains. They had intended making their home with this sister. Alone among strangers who spoke a different language, they were bewildered. They were happy when the trusted missionary Andrew Nelson took them to Mantt. Metta took them into her home. Andrew married them in the spring of 1868 - they were his third and fourth wives. However, Christine had withdrawn from the family, leaving the three wives.

Metta's son Christian was born April 7, 1869. They lived congenially in Mantt until 1889 when Andrew was distellowshipped from the L.D.S. Church for neglecting his Church duties. Metta then withdrew from the family. She came to Ferron and lived with her son Christian in the home now owned by Clarise Beverage and husband Alex. About 1892 when Emma and John Lemon were planning their home, Metta looked at the plans and remarked "This fine large house and not a room for me." They immediately added an East wing to the plans and finished the home. In her later life Metta occupied those lovely rooms and died there April 11, 1902. She is buried in the Ferron Cemetery.

NOTES ABOUT METTA NELSON

Metta was the daughter of Gudkjaer (Godfrey) Nielsen (born 1798) and Elise Jensen. She was disowned by her family when she joined the Mormon Church and was given one dollar (or its equivalent) and sent away. She suffered many hardships before she got to Utah. The ship on which she sailed was on the ocean eleven weeks and the emigrants were so weak that they had to be helped to shore when the ship landed.

She came on to Utah by ox-team in 1853, traveling with the Captain Forsgren Company. She was married to Andrew Nelson in 1853 at Spring City and was called by Heber C. Kimball with her husband to settle Spring Town, now Spring City. They were unable to do this because the Indian hostility forced them on to Mantt. --- Lillian Nelson

As a young woman, Metta was tall. She had pretty black hair and dark brown eyes. She was even tempered and mild. She could fit in and didn't take sides. -- Kate Hall and Arthur Lemon

METTA GUDKJARSEN NELSON

By Eunice M. Nelson

Metta Gudkjarsen Nelson was born 28 Nov 1827 in Denmark. She was converted to the L.D.S. Church and baptized before leaving Denmark with an independent company of L.D.S. converts. This was the first large company to come from Scandinavia. John E. Forsgren served as the Captain. They left Copenhagen on December 20, 1852, sailing to Liverpool. Here the 279 Saints waited until the sailing vessel Forest Monarch was ready to sail on Jan. 16, 1853. It docked at New Orleans on March 16, 1853. The company then boarded a steamboat and sailed up the Mississippi River to St. Louis where they remained for about a month. From there they proceeded up the river two hundred miles to Keokuk, Iowa where they outfitted for crossing the plains. They arrived safely in Salt Lake City on September 30, 1853.

Brighton Young directed these Danish people to go to Sanpete. They stopped at Spring City, which was then called Little Denmark. The settlers were busy gathering in their abundant crops of potatoes and wild hay; they were also getting out logs for building more homes. Near Christmas a friendly Indian came and warned the settlers that a war party was on the way to massacre them. They hurriedly loaded their wagons with belongings and set out toward Mantt. As they came to the turn in the road about one mile south, they looked back and saw the houses and haystacks in Spring City in flames. The Mantt people took them into the fort and assigned them a place to spend the winter. Elizabeth Crawford Munk's "History of Mantt" lists Andrew and Metta as man and wife among these refugees. I have not been able to find where they were married. Both Metta and Andrew came in the Forsgren Company from Denmark. It must have been a civil ceremony because it is not listed in the Church Offices in Salt Lake City. They were probably married in Spring City by an Elder's ceremony, which was considered a civil ceremony. The Church Archives report Andrew Nelson and Metta Gudkjarsen were sealed at the home of Isaac Morley in Santaquin on June 22, 1859. Also, on June 22, 1859 Metta Christine Jensen and Andrew Nelson were sealed, and later all were sealed at the Endowment House in Salt Lake City.

Andrew and Metta obtained a city lot when the fort at Mantt was abandoned. They built a home, took up land for farming and pasture, and supported themselves in the regular pioneer manner. Their son Andrew Jr. was born April 2, 1857, a daughter Emma was born Feb. 10, 1861. August was born Aug. 14, 1863. In May 1865 Andrew Nelson left Mantt for a mission in Denmark. Metta's son Joseph was born Nov. 30, 1865, which was six months after Andrew left for his mission. Metta had the four children, the farm and livestock to care for with what help she could get from the neighbors. When Andrew had been in Denmark on his mission a few months another group of converts was ready to emigrate to Utah. My father, Peter H.

NOTES ABOUT METTA NELSON

Metta was the daughter of Gudkjaer (Godfrey) Nielsen (born 1798) and Elise Jensen. She was disowned by her family when she joined the Mormon Church and was given one dollar (or its equivalent) and sent away. She suffered many hardships before she got to Utah. The ship on which she sailed was on the ocean eleven weeks and the emigrants were so weak that they had to be helped to shore when the ship landed. She came on to Utah by ox-team in 1853, traveling with the Captain Forsgren Company. She was married to Andrew Nelson in 1853 at Spring City and was called by Heber C. Kimball with her husband to settle in Spring Town, now Spring City. They were unable to do this because the Indian hostility forced them on to Mantt. --- Lillian Nelson As a young woman, Metta was tall. She had pretty black hair and dark brown eyes. She was even tempered and mild. She could fit in and didn't take sides. --- Kate Hall and Arthur Lemon

Madsen, was among them. He was 18 years old. It is my impression that Andrew was worrying about Metta and asked my father to go to Metta when he reached Mantt and help her care for the farm work. Not the least of this work was going into the mountains and hauling firewood to heat her home. My father stayed at Metta's home until Andrew reached home in the fall of 1867 - and a few weeks longer. It seemed that Metta was generous in sharing her home with young people. Anna Laurentsen also stayed with her when she arrived from Denmark. She later married Andrew Jr. Another girl, Christine Anderson - later wife of James Crawford stayed with Metta - for years. When the Nils Hansen family moved to Ferron he left his daughter Hannah Hansen Ralphs with Metta for a time. When her husband Andrew returned from his mission in 1867 he brought with him two orphan girls, Camilla and Sophia Moller, whose older married sister had died crossing the plains. They had intended making their home with this sister. Alone among strangers who spoke a different language, they were bewildered. They were happy when the trusted missionary Andrew Nelson took them to Mantt. Metta took them into her home. Andrew married them in the spring of 1868 - they were his third and fourth wives. However, Christine had withdrawn from the family, leaving the three wives. Metta's son Christian was born April 7, 1869. They lived congenially in Mantt until 1889 when Andrew was disallowedshiped from the L.D.S. Church for neglecting his Church duties. Metta then withdrew from the family. She came to Ferron and lived with her son Christian in the home now owned by Clarise Beverage and husband Alex. About 1892 when Emma and John Lemon were planning their home, Metta looked at the plans and remarked "This fine large house and not a room for me." They immediately added an East wing to the plans and finished the home. In her later life Metta occupied those lovely rooms and died there April 11, 1902. She is buried in the Ferron Cemetery.

by Stanley C. Nelson*

Andrew Nelson Sr. was sixteen years old when the Danish Mission was opened in 1850 under the direction of Erastus Snow. Until 1849 the Danish people were required by law to belong to the state church, the Lutheran. At that time they received their religious freedom. Since the Danes now had the opportunity to choose their religion for themselves, the leaders of the Latter-day Saints Church decided that this was the opportune time to start missionary work in Denmark. While many converts were made, the opposition to the Latter-day Saints was strong. Persecution was severe and several of the Elders were brutally treated. In spite of this, Andrew was baptized October 19, 1951 by Elder C. Larsen.

Andrew was born in the eastern part of the mainland (Jylland) in Kalhave, Hornborg, Skanderborg on March 8, 1834. He was the son of Niels Andersen and Marie Kirstine Jensen. His home region is quite hilly and very green, as is all of Denmark. In the springtime there are a great many flowers. Both evergreen and broadleaved trees grow in profusion. The region has many beautiful lakes with green banks. A very high percentage of the land is cultivated.

At the time Andrew was a boy much of the land was owned by wealthy landowners and bonded out to the farmers. The tenants were bonded and usually could not leave the land. They were bondsmen and their children were also bonded by the landowner so they too had to stay on the land. It was a real accomplishment to become a freeman. The shopowners and tradesmen were usually freemen, or freeholders, as it is usually written by the Danish. One way to become a freeman was to marry someone who was a freeman. Andrew's father, Niels Andersen, first married a woman nine years older than himself. We wonder if he did this because she was a freeholder or had some money or land. When she died thirty years later Niels married a younger woman of about thirty-eight. Andrew was born six years later when she was about forty-four, his father was sixty-nine. Needless to say, Andrew was the only child. His father died just before his tenth birthday. Andrew grew into a large, handsome young man. He had a strong build and weighed well over two hundred pounds. He had dark, good-looking hair and blue eyes. He seems to have had a spirit of independence; a trait which has no doubt filtered down to his family. Although although there was much opposition to the Mormon Church, Andrew joined a year after it was brought to Denmark. Thus his routine way of life was interrupted and a course began which would lead him to become a pioneer in the wilderness of Western America.

*Assisted in research by Monte Nelson and Conrad Nelson

Andrew soon had a strong desire to come to Utah. He joined the Forsgren Company which was the first large company of Latter-day Saints to come from Scandinavia. The company left Copenhagen December 20, 1852. They went to Liverpool and after some delay set sail for America. They arrived in New Orleans March 31, 1853. They went to St. Louis by steamboat. Stopped a month, then went up the Missouri River to Keokuk, Iowa. They started across the plains with oxteam on the 21st of May. They arrived in Salt Lake City on September 30, after nine months of hard travel. Most of the Forsgren party were assigned to Sanpete County by Brigham Young. On October 15, the company reached "Little Denmark" which was later renamed Spring City. The Walker Indian War was then being fought and there was considerable fear among the settlers. Food was in short supply and life was difficult. "Upon learning of the hostilities of the Indians, and near starvation of the people at Little Denmark, President Brigham Young sent a letter advising the Saints to continue on to Mantli." They arrived in Mantli the evening of December 16, 1853. "A foot of snow had fallen, and it was bitterly cold. They camped inside the fort. For the next few months frozen potatoes served with bran and smutty ground wheat was the fare three times daily. Insufficient clothing, however, caused greater suffering than the pangs of hunger."<sup>2</sup>

Andrew's best accomplishment while at Spring City was marrying Metta Nelson, who also came with the Forsgren Company. How long they had known each other is hard to determine. It must have taken considerable courage to get married under the conditions which they faced. The fare was hardly one that would be ordered for a honeymoon.

Plural marriage was the order of the day for the Latter-day Saints who had a desire to live it. However additional wives could be married only if the first gave her permission. One of the family said that as Andrew considered another wife, the young people of Mantli were invited into the home of Andrew and Metta for some social evenings and Metta had the final say who was to be the second wife. Her choice was Christina Jensen, who Andrew married in July 1858. Christina had come in a handcart company in 1857. Christina has left us an excellent account in her own words of this handcart crossing. Many of the family have a copy of it.

Andrew was called on a mission to his native land, Denmark, in 1865. He had been ordained in the priesthood to the office of a Seventy May 17, 1857 by John Crawford. When he arrived in Denmark he assumed the Danish version of his name, Anders Nielsen. In the United States however he always went by the Anglized version, Andrew Nelson. It is not known whether Andrew changed it or someone else when he first came to this country. Andrew was evidently a good missionary because he was appointed to preside over the Aarhus Conference in January 1866. He was the first Elder from the United States to preside over this Conference.<sup>3</sup>

<sup>1</sup>Song of a Century, p. 30 (A history of Mantli, Utah. This was compiled and edited by the editorial staff of the Mantli Centennial Committee.)

Andrew Jensen, who was the assistant church historian, in his history of the Scandinavian Mission, pointed out that "For a long time the Gospel gained splendid ground in the Aarhus Conference, and for a number of years more persons were added to the Church in that conference than any other conference in Scandinavia." Andrew was one of them that carried on that fine work.

Andrew left Copenhagen in a company of the Saints on June 13, 1867 bound for Liverpool. In the company were two young women, Camilla and Sophia Moller, who later married him. At Liverpool on June 21st they boarded the beautiful steamship "Manhattan", a vessel of 2,000 tons, big for those days. It was equipped to carry a thousand passengers.

After a twelve-day voyage they arrived at New York City. They went up the Hudson by steamer to Albany. They traveled on the railroad from there to St. Joseph, Missouri via Niagara Falls, Detroit, and Chicago. They took a steamer up the Missouri River to Omaha. From there they traveled on the Union Pacific Railroad 291 miles westward to North Platte. After a stay of four weeks, they journeyed across the plains by ox-train. They arrived in Salt Lake City on October 5th. Andrew and the two girls went on to Mantt. The two sisters stayed through the winter with Andrew's first wife, Metta.

In March Andrew married both sisters. Did he love one sister more than another? His actions speak very plainly for themselves, for he married both girls on the same day, March 28, 1868.

In Mantt Andrew and his wives settled down and established themselves in the community. It was not entirely without fear because the Black Hawk Indian War in which seventy-five settlers were killed was in progress. Andrew took part in the local militia and is mentioned several times as an Indian fighter and a veteran of the Black Hawk Indian War.

Andrew Nelson held several positions in public life. He served as a city councillor for two terms, justice of the peace one term, sheriff for two years, and as constable and pound keeper for Mantt. He owned several small farms and was a stockholder in the Union Roller Mill in Mantt. Peter Munk, an old time resident of Mantt, said of Andrew Nelson, "A man of great wisdom and foresight. He was active in the Indian Wars and served the city in several capacities. He was regarded as one of its (Mantt) most substantial citizens."<sup>6</sup>

<sup>3</sup>Jenson, Andrew, History of the Scandinavian Mission, p. 498.
(See also pages 187-190)

<sup>4</sup>Jenson, Hist. Sc. Mission, p. 498.
<sup>5</sup>Jenson, Hist. Sc. Mission, pp. 198-9
<sup>6</sup>Daughters of Utah Pioneers, Historical Pamphlet, March 1944
"A Pioneer Journal, Forsgren Company, Containing Story of the First Danish Company to Emigrate to Utah."

This is only a small part of the history of Andrew Nelson and his wives. How much more of the history and stories of the Nelson family that is written depends largely on the family and how much time the individual members take to write it. May I encourage you to write down the stories you know about the family and send them in?

A few sentences from his obituary were of special interest: "He became a member of the Church of Jesus Christ in 1851 in his native land and for a number of years was actively engaged as a church worker, filling a most successful mission to his native land for a period of two years in the sixties." He followed farming and stockraising as a profession and was successful in his endeavors, and bore an excellent reputation among all the people of this community." "Mr. Nelson was always kind and generous, helpful to the poor and needy and most friendly with all." ----- Deseret News, September 21, 1909

Andrew Nelson Sr. used to pound the table and say "I am the trunk and all the Nelson's are the branches." He was strong willed and could get very angry, but he was generally just. One day he took a load of wheat in sacks to the miller and asked him to grind it. For some reason the miller did not want to do it. So Andrew left his sacks of wheat, walked into the mill and took a fair amount of flour, and then distributed the flour to families who needed it. ----- Kate Hall

Andrew Nelson served a term as the justice of the Peace in Mantt. He performed this duty in a very dignified and judicial manner. At one time a family man was brought before Andrew on trial. He was found guilty and Andrew assigned him to do a number of days' work on a town ditch project to pay his fine. Certain people criticized this penalty as too lenient for the offense.

Andrew answered them, "If I fine him a certain amount of money his family will suffer the loss. It is he who is guilty, not they; hence, his labor should pay the penalty." The critics agreed with him.

When the Council House was being built in Mantt North Ward, using stone from the Temple Hill quarry, Andrew Nelson came along and watched six men trying to carry a long window sill stone up a ramp to the second story. One of the sidewalk engineers goaded another into a bet, then had them lift it to his shoulders and carried it up the ramp. This was in his prime of life before he had asthma. He was at the time the most physically powerful man in Mantt. ----- Bunice Nelson

One time as they were hauling hay, the reach of the wagon came uncoupled. Andrew laid on his back and with his legs lifted and held up the load of hay while the reach was replaced. ----- Max M. Nelson